

What's on your desk?

Heath Eskalyo

Eskalyo is a shareholder at Kelley Kronenberg in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. He specializes in workers' compensation defense and OSHA cases.

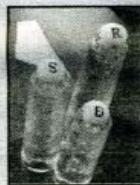

- My office is themed around the sport of triathalons, and I often do charitable fundraising through the sport with clients and my firm.

- I have a photo of myself with my family after I crossed the finish line of the Florida Iron Man competition, which was my ultimate goal race. It shows a year of commitment to training with the support of my family.

- I have three glass cylinders that have the initials S.B.R., which stands for Swim, Bike, Run. People tend to figure it out once they look around the office.

- My business card holder is made out of a bicycle chain.

- A mouse pad with the Iron Man Corp. logo.

- Incorporated into the paint of my wall, I have two quotes. One says, "Anything is possible," and the other is "I believe in me." That's something we have always tried to instill in our kids, that they can do anything they set their minds to.

- On one wall is a huge picture of a professional triathlete coming out of the ocean. I also have a water bottle hanging up with bike spokes coming out of it instead of flowers.